

YANKS DRIVING GERMANS BACK IN ITALY

Meandering
Along the

By WASH FAYETTE

Talk about the mighty oaks from little acorns growing . . . well, you should see what has grown from a little soybean Delbert Spears planted in the garden at his farm home on the Jackson Road about four miles out of Jeffersonville.

Prompted, I suppose, by curiosity, to see just what would happen under certain conditions . . . because he is surrounded by broad and fertile acres, many of which are covered with soybeans . . . Spears dropped 20 tiny Manchu soybeans in a row in his garden where he could watch them as individuals . . . the experiment harked back to that old saw about not being able to see the trees for the forest . . . but Spears had his right where he could check on them as individuals and not as a crowd.

Warren Williams brought one of the plants Spears grew into the Record-Herald office . . . it was just a little over three feet tall . . . and we counted the pods . . . there were 340 of them and they averaged three beans per pod . . . we didn't take the trouble to shell them all out to see how big a pile they would make or how much they would weigh . . . we might have held one of those contests like guessing how many beans or grains of corn there are in a glass jar, but we didn't . . . we were satisfied with gasping at the size of the plant and the number of fat pods on it . . . no wonder Fayette County farmers are going in for growing soybeans.

Incidentally, that makes me wonder why some individual or group doesn't get together and put up a processing plant here . . . soybeans have such a variety of commercial uses . . . and are considered such fine feed for livestock, when processed into meal . . . and, what's more to the point, they apparently thrive in Fayette County's soil . . . the biggest yield I can recall being reported this year is around 40 bushels per acre . . . and in terms of cash at present prices, that ain't hay.

When the streets of the city were named, those selecting the names drew heavily upon the names of trees for the streets and then wound up, after selecting no less than eight kinds of trees or timber, by naming one Forest Street!

Tree names for streets were so very popular that they named one Oakland Avenue.

Streets named after trees are: Oak, Chestnut, Walnut, Cherry, Elm, Cedar, Olive, Maple and Mulberry.

We also have a North Street that does not run north and an East Street that does not run east, so when we say North North Street and South North Street, and East East Street and West East Street, we are not giving the directions for any means.

Circle Avenue likewise was so named because it is semi-circular in shape, and not because it is in a circle. Broadway is one of the narrowest streets in the city, so it seems that several of the streets are misnamed.

Late Monday afternoon many citizens stopped and looked and took another look when a man, driving a horse attached to an old, high wheeled cart, drove through the up-town area.

It was the first vehicle of its kind seen in the main part of the city in recent years, and attracted more attention than that of the first automobiles did.

Apparently the owner of the outfit was passing through en route to some other point.

EARL COOK NAMED STATE BANK HEAD

COLUMBUS, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Earl Cook of Bucyrus today was appointed state superintendent of banks, succeeding William L. Hart of Salem, who resigned to become vice president of the Central Trust Company of Cincinnati.

The appointment was the third made by Gov. John W. Bricker to the $7,500-a-year position.

NO NEW TAXES STAND IS TAKEN BY REPUBLICANS

Many Other Controversies Are Blossoming in Congress: Some Get Bitter

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(AP)—House Republicans slammed the door on new taxes in this Congress, demanding government economy instead, and Democrats immediately retorted today that the minority was making political issue out of a need for more revenue.

The no-new-tax stand taken in a formal statement by the 10 Republicans on the 25-man House ways and means committee yesterday raised a serious question whether any bill for new or higher levies of any kind could be achieved this year.

Lend-Lease Explained
House members got a "convincing" first-hand progress report on the war today from Gen. George C. Marshall, Secretary of War Stimson and other top-flight leaders of the nation's military effort.

In a half-hour talk behind the closed doors of the Congressional Library auditorium, General Marshall gave what some members described as "a straight-from-the-shoulder discussion of what we have done, what is going on now and what we are planning to do on the fighting fronts."

Chairman Cannon (D-Mo.) of the appropriations committee called the program, arranged at the request of House leaders, "very convincing."

Lieut. Col. Larry MacPhail of the Army Public Relations section, said it was "an honest effort to acquaint the law-makers with the problems we have confronted and which lie ahead."

Tussle on Subsidies
Obviously ready for another tussle with Congress over subsidies, President Roosevelt showed a determination not to budge in his demands that federal funds be used to hold down food prices.

The president is expected to send a food message to Capitol Hill tomorrow outlining his reasons for backing subsidies. In doing that he may dip into the broader field of inflation.

Home Criticism
Two of the five senators who aroused the British press by their critical observations on lend-lease and other Allied operations called today for a frank discussion of Anglo-American relationships.

Senator Chandler (D-Ky), a member of the party that toured Allied battlefronts, said the returning senators had spoken more in sorrow at the shortcomings of American representatives abroad than in anger at the British.

"We were not trying to lecture the British about their actions—in fact, we complimented them for being on their toes and being better prepared to take care of their interests all over the world than we," Chandler said.

Advertising Discussed
A bill empowering the treasury to spend $300,000,000 a year in paid newspaper advertising to boost War Bond sales won the support of Senator Tobey (R-NH) but one of his colleagues called for safeguards against "political propaganda."

"Newspapers should not be expected to furnish free to the government the space upon which they depend for existence," said Tobey, a member of the Senate banking committee which resumed hearings on the bill introduced by Senator Bankhead (D-Ala.).

Senator Danaher (R-Conn), also a member of the committee, objected to what he said was a lack of "any restriction as to what could go into the advertisement."

Voting for Servicemen
Champions of states' rights were locked in sharp controversy with advocates of federal control of balloting today over the question of how millions of servicemen overseas may vote in the 1944 national elections.

Both factions have expressed

Synthetic Tires Can't Take It in Test by Patrol

COLUMBUS, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Current synthetic tires contain too many defects to render them satisfactory for hard usage, asserts Col. Lynn Black, superintendent of the State Highway Patrol. Four makes of synthetic tires have been tested on 60 Highway Patrol automobiles during the past 60 days. Black said no treads have been worn out "simply because other defects in the tires show up or the tread comes loose long before it shows signs of being worn."

He said the tires might be used for private use if driven at low speeds.

BLACKEST DAY YET FOR NAZIS

Germans Admit Situation in Russia Dangerous

By JOHN H. COLBURN

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 20.—(AP)—The past 24 hours, in which the Red army cracked the German eastern front defenses in a major break, were the blackest of the war for Germany, Swedish correspondents reported today from Berlin.

The Berlin correspondent of Aftonbladet said if Soviet troops can follow up their smashing breakthrough through the "Germans realize it can't mean anything but a catastrophe that would put Stalingrad in a shadow."

"As a whole, the war reports since yesterday have given Germany its blackest day since the war started, even counting Stalingrad," said the Aftonbladet dispatch, which passed German censorship.

It is obvious to every German that the Russians, not the Germans, have the initiative, and Red army force, instead of growing weaker, grows stronger, piling up great troubles for the German army. Even the most optimistic German hesitates now in viewing what is going to happen."

Swedish correspondents indicated that there had not been so much anxiety in Berlin since Berliners began to prepare for aerial warfare against the Reich capital after the devastation of Hamburg in early August.

There was considerable speculation here that there is more behind the latest conference between Adolf Hitler and Nazi leaders than announced through official German agencies.

Berlin dispatches said Major Sommerfeldt, official representative of the German high command, announced the breach in the German lines to a press conference with the solemn words: "I am sorry I have to announce a Russian breakthrough on the German front."

Stockholm's Tidningen said Sommerfeldt had not used such a solemn tone or similar words since the fall of Stalingrad. He made no effort to hide the fact that the German situation on the eastern front was critical. The correspondent added, and no longer insisted that the breach could be repaired.

OPA INVITES PUBLIC TO EXPRESS VIEWS

Criticism To Be Used as Guide for Future

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP)—The Office of Price Administration (OPA) is going to invite the public to talk back.

It will launch an opinion survey soon, sampling the country's views on OPA price control and rationing. The information obtained will be used as a guide in any regulation revision found feasible, as well as in preparation of new orders.

"This is not an attempt to glamorize OPA or sell the public on it," said James G. Rogers, Jr., assistant general manager of the agency. "The purpose is to find out what the public thinks about the program, discover what can be done to simplify it and clear up any misunderstanding of specific parts of it."

Moscow Conference Is Making Progress

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Apparently satisfied with results of their formal talk last night, U. S. Secretary of State Cordell Hull, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Soviet Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov settled down today to a program of daily conferences on wartime and post-war matters.

Their initial meeting lasted for two hours and 15 minutes, and it was understood that the session was satisfactory. No formal announcement concerning the progress of the talks will be issued while the sessions are under way.

Before last night's session, a spokesman said it would give the three diplomats a chance to share "frankly and freely what's on one another's mind." Eden and Hull conversed at the official residence of the U. S. ambassador before the meeting.

The foundation for future vital discussions among United Nations leaders will be largely laid at this time.

BEN BERNIE DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Old Maestro of Stage and Screen Succumbs

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Oct. 20.—(AP)—Ben Bernie, the old maestro of the stage, screen and radio, died at his apartment this morning after a long illness from a pulmonary affection with heart complications.

At his bedside were his wife, the son, Private Jason Bernie of the U. S. Army, his brother-manager, Herman Bernie, and the latter's wife.

The 52-year-old band leader was stricken with pleurisy while playing an engagement in Chicago last February. After a short period abed he disregarded his physician's orders and came to the west coast to fulfill entertainment engagements in war plants.

Soon after arriving here he suffered a relapse and for 11 weeks was confined to an oxygen tent. During most of the period his life was despaired of.

CAPT. CLARK GABLE PRAISES AMERICANS

AT A U. S. FORTRESS BASE IN ENGLAND, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Packing up his things to return to the United States, Captain Clark Gable declared today the fliers he has been filming for six months are boys "America may well be proud of."

"They, in turn, summed him up as 'a great guy.'"

"My chief impression from my work here is the splendid spirit and achievement of all the men," said the film actor who went on five raids over Europe.

YANK BOMBERS RAID GERMANY

Small Force of Nazi Planes Attack England

LONDON, Oct. 20.—(AP)—United States heavy bombers, supported by Thunderbolts and Spitfires, attacked targets in western Germany today.

A small force of German air raiders dropped bombs at widely separated places in eastern England last night, touched off the fourth successive night alert in London and caused some casualties.

Four persons were killed by a bomb which dropped in one suburb of the capital and 12 others were buried by falling debris, but they were rescued alive.

There was no indication of any large scale RAF activity over the continent during the night.

It was the seventh major operation of the month for the American heavy bombers but their first since the destructive smash at Germany's big bearing plant at Schweinfurt October 14.

ANTI-STRIKE LAW GETS FIRST TEST

WHITE PIGEON, Mich., Oct. 20.—(AP)—Despite an order of the regional War Labor Board (WLB) that they return to work by 9 A. M. today, 220 men and women workers at the Eddy Paper Company remained away from their jobs this morning in a 17-day strike, described by a WLB official as the first union-authorized strike under the Smith-Conally act.

Representatives of the regional WLB met with employees last night and called for a back-to-work vote, but at the insistence of Leonard Shaw, international representative of the United Paper, Novelty and Toy Workers (CIO), no vote was taken.

HITLER'S HORDE IN RUSSIA NOW FACES DISASTER

Nazis in Desperate Position On Two Major Fronts as Bloody Battles Rage

By RICHARD McMURRAY

The American Fifth Army forced the Germans into a violent, scorched-earth retreat today to a line stretched from the mountain fastness of Venafrò, 83 miles southeast of Rome, to the Mediterranean village of Mondragone, 90 miles below the Italian capital.

Three towns, horribly scarred by Nazi destruction, fell. These were Dragoni, two and a half miles northwest of Alivignano; Pignataro, six miles north of the Volturno River town of Capua; and Roccaromana, five miles northwest of Liberì. Advances ranged to five miles.

The British Eighth Army pushed the right anchor of the Allied line five miles forward to seize Petacciato on the Adriatic, nine miles above Tormoli.

Liberator bombers ranged far up the Adriatic coast and knocked out the crucial enemy railway between Ancona and Pescara. Four bridges were destroyed in a half hour by the completely unopposed American fliers.

As the Germans were forced back toward Rome, they left behind one of the war's worst scenes of desolation. They wiped out civilians as well as their cattle and homes, dispatches from Algiers headquarters said.

Their new line was established in a series of difficult steep ridges, cut by deep valleys. The key to their new front was sugarloaf Mt. Massico near the Mediterranean. On the sides of the mountain, the Nazis were dug in with liberal gun emplacements.

Reds Surge Ahead
Unleashing a mass power drive which breached the "impregnable" German defense lines southeast of Kremenchuk, Red army troops have captured the key rail junction of Pyatikhatka, 70 miles west of Dnepropetrovsk to cut a main Nazi escape corridor in one of the bloodiest battles of the great 1943 Russian offensive.

Four crack divisions were routed by the tank-supported Russian attack, which rolled westward for from nine to 12 miles yesterday to liberate more than 100 towns, said a Moscow communique.

More than 1,800 Nazi officers and men were reported captured and at the end of the day's fighting the German garrison at Dnepropetrovsk was left with but a single railroad line running southwest to Nikolaev on the Black Sea, severance of which would isolate the large Nazi forces crowded in the pocket of the big Dnieper River bend.

Huge amounts of booty were abandoned by the Germans at Pyatikhatka, which lies astride the main rail line between Znamenska and Dnepropetrovsk, said the Soviet war bulletin.

Further Red army progress was reported north and south of the Ukrainian capital of Kiev.

The whole German position inside the Dnieper River elbow was threatened today as harassed Nazi commanders hurled fresh divisions of men, tanks and artillery into the fight in an attempt to halt the Red army's flanking drive to the west of the river.

60 More Japs Downed
Gen. MacArthur's bombers destroyed 60 more Japanese planes, a destroyer and gunboat at Rabaul and sank a jam-packed 8,000-ton enemy troop transport nearby. On New Guinea, Australians met their first reverse in weeks and were shoved back an undisclosed distance within 15 miles of recaptured Finschhafen.

The fresh American advances in Italy placed them 11 miles north of the overrun Volturno River line. Official reports said Marshall Kesselring's seven Nazi

TIME TO CHECK AGAIN ON BOOKS FOR GASOLINE

Board Hopes for Advance Applications To Help Get Renewals Cleared

It's time to begin checking up on gasoline ration books again. If the renewal date comes within the next month, the Ration Board would like to have the applications sent in "as soon as possible" to avoid delay in getting out the new books. The chairman explained that the board here always has tried to get new ration books to applicants before the old ones expire because, he added, "we don't want anyone to be handicapped. We'll do our best to do our part," he declared, "but the people will have to do theirs, too."

Failure of motorists to make application for renewals, the chairman said, "undoubtedly will mean that they will have to wait—possibly with dry gasoline tanks on their cars—for their new books." He also emphasized that it was essential that tire inspection records be mailed in with the applications.

The chairman explained the necessity of early application at this particular time by saying: "Owing to the detail work connected with the issuance of ration book 4, the workload will be greater on the staff during the next few weeks at the board here." This situation, he said, "will make it impossible to issue gasoline ration books on the 'while-you-wait' basis the board has always tried to maintain."

Special Rations

The Office of Price Administration has announced the scope of provisions for allowing special gasoline rations for procuring necessary food had been limited, but there was no comment immediately forthcoming on this from the county's Ration Board. The OPA announcement, however, said that persons residing at great distances from market centers would continue to be eligible for special rations if they cannot obtain supplies on the non-occupational mileage in their "A" books.

The general impression was that there would be few, if any, families in Fayette County so far from a market center that they could not get to a store on "A" rations.

The amendment specifically excludes persons desiring mileage to obtain food for the operation of a business or occupation. In such cases, qualification for supplementary rations is on an occupational basis. The amendment is effective October 23.

Gift Package Plan

At the same time, the OPA outlined two procedures for obtaining rationed food for gift packages to be sent to American prisoners of war or men and women in service overseas.

Persons preferring to make such shipments themselves may get the necessary points by applying to their district OPA office.

If they want the dealer from whom the food is bought to make the shipment, they may make the purchase without giving up stamps and OPA will replace the point value of the food the dealer exports.

4. Bootlegging—or black marketing of whisky—is growing. Whisky shipments have been stolen on the way from the distillery to the warehouse; bootleggers have been buying up whisky at regular prices from regular dealers for resale at their own prices.

But government figures show there is enough whisky on hand in this country to last more than two years at regular consumption rates. Normal consumption is about 140 million gallons a year. (Last year because of increased purchasing power, the Distilled Spirits Institute says, consumption was 190 million gallons.)

There are now in bonded warehouses about 400 million gallons.

$30,000,000 IS WANTED FOR BOND ADVERTISING

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Senator Bankhead (D., Ala.) declared today the Treasury Department is "trying to ride a free horse to death" by asking newspapers to contribute space for War Bond drives without any compensation.

Bankhead, sponsor of a bill authorizing the treasury to place between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000 of paid War Bond advertising annually in newspapers, criticized treasury opposition to the measure as it came before the Senate Banking committee.

divisions were engaged in an orgy of destructive fury against the Italians, shooting civilians, destroying railways and roads and even burning haystacks to provide a smoke screen to cover their retreat.

The Russian breakthrough on the west side of the Dnieper posed a grave threat of disaster for the hundreds of thousands of Nazi troops ensconced in the big bend of the river and in the Crimea. By capturing Pyatikhatka, the Russians cut all German escape routes from Dnepropetrovsk except a single railway. Their direction appeared to be aimed at the Black Sea west of the Crimea, either toward Nikolayev or Odessa itself.

The Crimea contains 100,000 German troops. As the warm "Florida of Russia," it has been reported that 250,000 wounded Germans are convalescing there. The main railway through Melitopol and Zaporozhe already is cut and the lone escape route left is a Jerry-built railway crisscrossing the Crimea through Kherson.

Fighting presumably continued among the solid stone buildings of Melitopol, where a battle as intense as that of Stalingrad raged in its ninth day. The Reds also were declared curling about the Ukrainian capital of Kiev from bridgeheads north and south.

The Russians also were encircling Gomel in White Russia and the Germans spoke of troop masses assembling in the north for a new offensive to relieve Leningrad.

School Aid Bill

Moving toward a Senate showdown on a proposed $300,000,000 a year school aid bill, Senators Barbour (R-NJ) and Langer (R-ND) called for a vote on identical amendments to bar discriminations "on account of race, creed or color" in administering the fund.

Majority Leader Barkley of Kentucky predicted a vote today with chances favorable for passage. His estimate was disputed by opponents in both parties, who contend all but three or four states now are operating on surplus money.

Under the bill, $200,000,000 would be allocated in proportion to pupil attendance in the various states. The other $100,000,000, intended to equalize educational opportunities, would be distributed on the basis of financial need, reckoned under a complicated formula.

'If Wilson's Don't Have It — It Will Be Hard To Find'

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

There's only one point remaining to be settled in connection with the burning "second front" issue which the Russians have made the paramount question before the tripartite Allied conference in Moscow—and that's when the cross-channel invasion of France shall take place.

The Allied high command already has decided that there shall be such an operation—when the time seems right. Active preparations for this invasion—which will be in the nature of a coupe de grace for Hitler—are continuing.

Talk in the camp of the Anglo-American Allies in the past few days has been emphasizing next spring as the favorable time for invasion. Truth or consequences? Famous Field Marshal Smuts of South Africa yesterday supported this theme in London by predicting that the grand assault will come next year.

Simultaneously a little dispatch from England announces the recent arrival of a large contingent of American troops—obviously invasion forces. And at the same time we learn that Premier Churchill now gives a card of greeting which is inscribed "To every American soldier who has left home to join the great forces now gathering in this island."

So preparations proceed apace—but that doesn't guarantee invasion in the near future. As remarked in this column before, the best we can say is that there's still time for the operation this year, although the season is late.

The western Allies certainly have justification for proceeding with circumspection in this dangerous adventure. Failure would be catastrophic.

Assembly of the colossal invasion forces with supplies and equipment is only the beginning of the problems. We had an illustration of that in miniature in the invasion of Dieppe last year, when close to half a force of 6,000 or more men—five-sixths of whom were Canadians—were killed, wounded or captured.

Still, valuable lessons were learned at Dieppe, and in the subsequent invasions of North Africa, Sicily and Italy. The Allies have much better forewarning for the French invasion than they have had before.

One threat, of course, lies in the fact that the great invasion fleet of barges and warships will be under intense fire of German land batteries, as well as all the bombers Hitler can muster. The recently published book "Combined Operations," British official story of the commandos, reminds us of Nelson's dictum that "three guns in a well-constructed battery, properly placed, would beat off or destroy any ship in the world."

Another menace is mines—both sea and land. The employment of this defense against amphibious attacks has been developed to a fine point by the Germans.

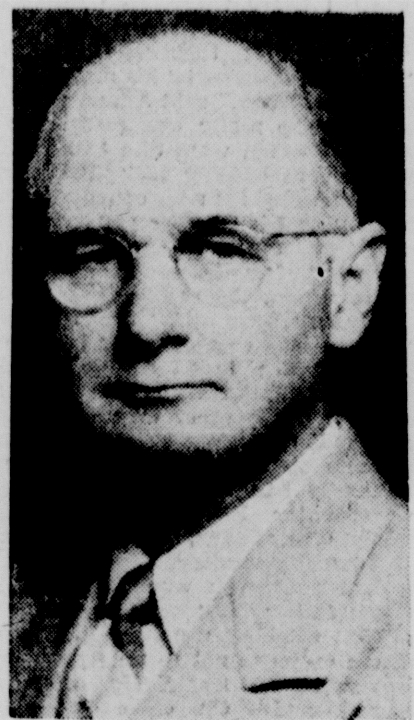

Creamery butter production last year amounted to more than 1,779,465,000 pounds.

MASTERLY TALK HEARD TUESDAY BY ROTARIANS

Attorney Harold Houston of Urbana Speaks on 'What I Think'

A masterly address which might well be termed a scholarly sermon by a layman, one which any renowned minister could have been very proud to deliver, was brought to Washington Rotarians and a large number of guests at the weekly club luncheon at the Country Club Tuesday. It was a discourse ably spoken by a polished orator and easily might have been captioned as "a philosophy for a useful life" but the subject announced by the speaker was "What I Think."

Harold Houston of Urbana, one of Ohio's prominent and ablest attorneys, was the guest speaker and those who heard him were in unanimous agreement that the talk was one of the finest to which they ever listened.

Interspersed with keen wit and wholesome humor, this address, in simple language but filled with inspiring thought, held the speaker's hearers in a manner that was a high and convincing compliment to its worth.

Based upon a simple statement made by Theodore Roosevelt who once declared that the most worthy life any person could live was to "do the best you can, with what you have, where you are," Attorney Houston made an earnest plea for every man to do his own job, no matter how simple might be the role he was called upon to play, as well as as honestly as he knew how.

Touching upon some of the lessons that might be drawn from the present world conflict, the speaker said, "the tragedy of this war has taught us that the great politics, and economics are but incidents of living. The basic reality—the eternal question now, is just what it was in the simplest civilization, namely, human relationships and the real meaning of life. The propositions are one and inseparable.

"And while we should take a keen interest in all questions of national and world policies, I sometimes think we would accomplish more if we worked from the inside out rather than from the outside in.

"This is not isolationism. It is merely applying the law of logistics to make our living effective, and it is accepting individual responsibility, instead of evading it by hiding behind general abstractions. It is so easy to talk in terms of world wide idealism. It is so hard to practice that same idealism in our own little worlds. We do not understand the economic and political problems of Africa and India, nor of the United States for that matter. Of course, one reason for that is they keep switching the answers on us.

"And therefore it is possible you and I will find the Holy Grail of our usefulness not in the solution of world wide military, economic and political issues, but in finding the right answers to the questions in our every day lives. Then like the ever widening circle caused by casting a pebble into the sea, we can by precept and example, make our contribution toward a better world order.

"And when duty impels us to criticize our Government, remember with all of its imperfections, it is still the greatest Government on earth, and the chief hope of human freedom.

"In all thinking we must start with a premise, and my premise is that this is a rational universe. I cannot think that this universe was created by an all powerful Frankenstein who, with fiendish glee, watches men struggle, suffer, bear injustice and be ex-daily existence, like beacons of another world.

"And, all of this, as I believe, so human beings can live and build, dream and create."

"But now man has distorted the grandeur of his heritage. And the snake, which has gotten into the Garden of Eden, is not the invention of the devil, but the invention of man himself. These inventions are capable of untold good, but man has built mechanical wonders, which are too mature for his own soul. He has developed the machine faster than he has developed his social conscience. He has multiplied his physical power one thousand fold, but his sense of spiritual responsibility has remained stationary.

"And while our boys are making their breasts a barricade between our country and its foes; while mothers and fathers and wives and children, in spirit, are walking with their loved ones through the valley of the shadow of death; while thousands of them are receiving in tragic bewilderment those telegrams—Secretary of War or the Secretary of the Navy—regrets to advise, what are we at home, who are merely inconvenienced, going to do about it?"

"I know a father and mother whose agony at the death of their son can find its prototype only in the Garden of Gethsemane. Alone they have given more to their country than the total we were asked to invest in the Third War Loan, for their payment was in the currency of eternity.

"In the Battle of Britain, Winston Churchill said 'Never in history did the safety of so many depend upon so few.' But now, never in history has the safety of so many depended upon so many. The foundation of the future rests upon unity of men, of good will. The future depends upon us. It also depends upon the men and women in public life, on the farms, in the factories and stores and offices, and in transportation, forming an endless chain to a thousand battle fronts on land and sea and in the air. The honesty of our purpose and the willingness of our sacrifice are the safeguards of America. Along the battlefronts, allied men and women of the armed services of all races and creeds, are suffering and dying not only to make men free, and to protect you and me. We can hardly draw the line where God has not. Together, and as one, we must catch the vision:

"Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord
He is trampling out the vintage
Where the grapes of wrath are stored
He hath loosed the fateful lightning of
His terrible swift sword,
His truth is marching on."

"Are the problems too vast? Is national and world idealism too great for us to understand? All right, then we will reduce those problems and that idealism to the sphere of our own influence. We will give to the little world in which we live more than we take from it.

"And of one thing we can be certain. While this is the machine age, it takes more than a mechanical pilot to guide us through life. The minds which invented the radio, radar, and the aeroplane, are great enough to make new discoveries in the realm of the spirit. Then man shall learn to know himself and realize his own possibilities. To this task we can well dedicate ourselves, not when the war is over, but now.

"The change must come not in distant lands, but in our own little worlds. We can be unknown soldiers seeking only the citation of time well spent and a life effectively lived. Thus can we keep America strong. Thus can we play our small parts in the new order, which, in generalities, so mystifies us, but which in practice, means doing the best we can, with what we have, where we are. Thus can we fight a good fight, and keep the faith with ourselves, our country, and our God."

GLOOM AHEAD FOR GERMANY

The Nazi high command can look forward to nothing but difficulties in the months to come. On the Russian front the Soviet armies are throwing everything they have at the Germans and it is now obvious that the Germans have suffered a catastrophic defeat on that front.
By the time the autumn rains bog down the mobile units, the Germans will be lucky to be holding anywhere on the Dnieper River line. But while they can hope for a breathing spell of a sort on the Russian front, it will be short lived and the Nazis have vivid memories of what the Reds have done to them in the past during the winter months. And only trouble looms for the Nazis in the south.
The Nazis can not permit the Americans and British to storm through the Italian peninsula unimpeded and the Germans are staking tens of thousands of men on holding northern Italy. There will be no autumn rains to bog down that area and Hitler can expect only bad news from that front. With the Balkan situation growing more explosive every hour, there is only trouble for the Germans there, too.

And weather will have little effect on the daily bombings of Germany and German-held territory. Tons of explosives will continue to pour down on Nazi installations and factories and cities. There will be no reforming of lines for Adolf Hitler this winter. All he can do now is struggle against the inevitable. The madman is finally in a strait jacket.

WAR BRINGS NEW METHODS

War, the great killer, is also apt to be a great saver of life. It is perhaps war's only redeeming feature that it gives medical science a giant laboratory where discoveries are made that in times of peace save countless lives.
This war is apparently no exception. From the maelstrom come reports of the successful use of ice in the treatment of bomb shock, in aiding seamen who have been immersed for hours in almost freezing water, and in the vast field of surgery as an anesthetic. The use of heat in treating bomb victims in England has definitely been proved to have been a mistake and British physicians now urge the application of cold treatments in order to release pent-up toxins into the blood stream at a very slow rate.
No longer are men hauled out of ice-cold waters, put to bed with warm pads. Instead only the upper parts of their bodies are warmed. Their lower extremities are kept cool, often with icebags. The results have been highly encouraging.
Physicians and surgeons in this country are watching with interest these developments abroad and it seems certain that the next few years will see the extensive use of ice as a valuable aid in the treatment of many types of injuries and in surgery.

Washington at a Glance

WASHINGTON—The draft of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers is under way. We didn't think it would happen and said so.
But in spite of the fact that Congressional efforts to put over a total ban or at least a deferment of the father draft has failed, both the Army and Selective Service still admit that only one in ten to 13 actually will be inducted.
Army, Selective Service and Navy officials knocked the postponement legislation into a cocked hat; but in all three circles, there are important officials who are willing to say, off the record, that pre-Pearl Harbor fathers have only a slight chance of ever serving in the armed forces and probably only a minute chance in the combat areas.
Broadly, the reasons for deferment of fathers will follow this outline, in the order named:
(1) Physical, which is the number one reason for deferment of selectees in any bracket and is certain to show a greater ratio for fathers who will be in the

Whether in the U.S. Armed Forces or in a job at home, the man or woman who has good manners, is pleasant and co-operative, does what he or she is told and does it "with a smile," is the one who wins promotion and the respect of superiors. Such a one is a "good soldier."

They dreamed of invasion of Asia Minor next, and of conquest of part at least of Turkey. Recently the Dodecanese have been held by the Germans, who are now being gradually expelled. Kos is one island in the group which is now the scene of a bitterly fought war.

However else Italy may fare in the future peace treaty, she must expect to lose those islands. She has no claim on them of any description. They are Greek, pure and simple, and should return to Greece. That will right a wrong of more than 30 years standing.

HUNTING FOR QUALITY

The War Department has built up its officer personnel now to the point where it is becoming very choosy about candidates for commissions. More than 206,000 men have been graduated to their gold bars (they used to be called shave-tails in the old days) and have started working their ways upward.

This means that fewer enlisted men are being sent to train for commissions. But the way to promotion is not foreclosed. Good men in the ranks still can apply for officerhood with reasonable hope of success. The only change is that their personalities and characters, their educations and experience, their demonstrated devotion to duty and moral, intellectual and physical courage, will be judged much more strictly than heretofore.

We all know what our flag stands for, and buying war bonds will help to show Germany and Japan what it won't stand for.

Diet and Health

Magazine Articles Reviewed

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.
WE ANNOUNCED a few weeks ago that we would review in this column articles on medical subjects appearing in the magazines. The monthly magazines seem to feel that publishing such articles fills a popular demand. So here goes.
The "American Mercury" always publishes sound and sensible medical advice. This month there is an article by Dr. Robert H. Feldt on tobacco. Does smoking cause high blood pressure? Does tobacco make you nervous? Should a nursing mother smoke?
The answers: (1) Life Extension Institute doctors examined 1,800 insurance policy holders. Of the 1,292 who were habitual smokers the average blood pressures were 121, systolic, 78, diastolic. Of the 496 non-smokers the averages were 121, systolic, 76, diastolic. Certainly no difference that means anything.
Smoking and Nervousness
(2) 8.8 per cent of the non-smokers admitted they were nervous and 6.7 per cent of the smokers had this complaint. But the investigators suggest that perhaps the cart is before the horse and that the smokers smoke because they are nervous.
(3) Moderate smoking has no effect on childbearing or on the health of the children. Dr. Potter, of Buffalo, writes: "Being a non-smoker myself, I have looked for bad effects as to milk supply and poorly developed children, but after a long period of observation I have failed to find any injurious effects."
Another article in the same issue of the magazine is on the new eye treatments of William H. Bates, ballyhooed by Aldous Huxley. Mr. Bates' idea is that eye glasses are not only unnecessary, but actually harmful, and he advises eye exercises such as blinking, shifting vision, palming or covering the eye to restore normal vision.
Of course, there is a small grain of truth in what he says, and indiscriminate use of glasses is silly. I would judge that four-fifths of the children of school age who wear glasses do not need them, but I do not know that they do any harm. While to deprive a badly near-sighted or far-sighted child of glasses is little less than criminal.
The tendency for such doctrines as Bates' is that people will not go to oculists and hence a number of people with cataract, glaucoma and serious eye disease go on until the condition is incurable.
Then many cases of visual difficulty in childhood get better with the onset of age. We all know people with myopia who couldn't see the arithmetic lesson as kids without strong lenses, but who threw them all away at the age of 50 when the lens began to get less elastic.
One of the most important lessons about life is mentioned by Mr. Robinson, the author of this article. "People vary greatly in their reactions to their illnesses. One person suffering from an attack of bronchitis will go to bed and remain an invalid for a month. Another will pay little attention to it and continue his normal routine until the attack passes off. Similarly one person with a refractive error of 4 diopters may be able to see perfectly well without glasses. Another with the same refractive error will complain of headaches, dizzy spells, and can never get glasses that satisfy him."
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Mrs. J. E.: Is there a cure for tuberculosis of the kidney, or does the kidney have to come out? Are t.b. germs hard to find in this condition?
Answer: You ask questions that require a great deal of judgment and personal knowledge of the case. Cases differ so much. I have known many cases of tuberculosis of the kidney to recover spontaneously. It is usually very difficult to recover tubercle bacilli from the urine even in a positive case.
Mrs. J. G.: Is there any virtue in taking olive oil and lemon juice for gall stones? Can they be dissolved?
Answer: This is an old quack stunt. The olive oil saponifies, or forms lumps in the intestines (if you take enough of it) and these lumps look like stones. The quacks show them to you and tell you they are stones. If you start to wash your hands with them, you find they are simply soap. Gallstones have never been dissolved.

CHAPTER FORTY
"IT'S ABOUT Peter," continued Mrs. Platt. "I've tried to be brave, and not talk about it—but you know him, are fond of him, so I—I'm going to get it out of my system."
"I wish you would," said Adam urgently. "It'll do you good. Of course I'm fond of Peter. He's a fine boy, and I wish to God I were with him right now."
Mrs. Platt patted his hand. "You're doing good work right where you are, Adam, dear," she said. "So don't you dare think otherwise."
"Thanks, Mrs. Platt," Adam said. "That cheers me up quite a bit. But go on. You were going to get something out of your system."
"Yes, I know," Mrs. Platt said. "But perhaps I shouldn't talk about it—be selfish and pour out my troubles to you."
"Shucks," said Adam. "Just think of me as an older son. You could have had a son as old as me if you were a little older yourself."
"I could anyway," said Mrs. Platt with disarming honesty. "I'm 55 years old. Peter was born when I was 30."
"Okay, Mom," said Adam, smiling. "Tell me all about it. You've always been a good scout, and I'm all for you."
"If you keep on talking like that, Adam," Mrs. Platt said, "I'll be tempted to adopt you." She watched the rehearsal for a moment, saw that everything was going smoothly under Brenda's competent direction, and took Adam's hand. "Let's go down into the rear of the auditorium," she said, "where we can talk without disturbing anyone."
"The very back row," said Adam, and led her to it. "Now," he said when they were seated, "tell Adam all that's bothering you."
Mrs. Platt sat silent for a time, as though trying to decide just where to begin.
"I thought," she said, "that producing Peter's play was the right thing to do—that it would give me something to keep me occupied and away from too much thinking, and at the same time do him a favor by using his play as a means of helping him help the men in the service. But now I'm beginning to doubt the wisdom of it."
"Why so?" Adam asked. "I still think it was a good idea, although I'm afraid I'm not very co-operative, what with so much on my mind that doesn't concern plays and acting."
"I was getting along all right," Mrs. Platt continued, "until just now when I was watching you and Susan play that scene at the window. Then all of a sudden I could see Peter reading it to me the night he finally got it written just as he wanted it. He came to my room in his pajamas, asked me if I were still awake, and then sat down close to my bedside lamp. I—I can see him now—the way the light fell upon his hair, making him look like my little boy again, for all of his 24 years. That was a year ago, and—and—there was a catch in her voice, a catch that told tears were dangerously near—and now he's gone."
Adam tried to think of something to say, but couldn't. Damn it all, why did he always feel so helpless when a woman cried or was about to? Why couldn't he think of something cheerful to say? But nothing cheerful came to mind. All he could think of was the fact that Peter Platt was gone—gone along with hundreds of thousands of other young men, out to do battle—out to face the fight for lasting peace, and—
"Adam," said Mrs. Platt, trying to steady her voice, "Peter's not coming home for a furlough, after all. I heard today. He's sailed already—on a transport—for some secret spot thousands of miles from Linville—and his mother."
"I'm sorry," said Adam, wondering if he really was sorry, and if Peter would want him to be. "But you'll be hearing soon. The transports are heavily convoyed, and he'll be back before you know it."
Mrs. Platt managed to smile through tear-dimmed eyes. "Thanks for saying things like that, Adam, my dear," she said. "You're a sweet boy to try to cheer up a lonely old lady." She found a handkerchief and used it. "I don't suppose I'd want it any other way. Peter convinced me before he left. He made me remember that a man in my family had fought in every war, from the Revolutionary through the War of 1812, the Civil war, the Spanish-American, right up to the last World War when—I lost his father. Listen, Mom," he said, "you wouldn't want my generation the only one not to take part, now would you? I said, 'No,' of course, and—and—Oh, come on, Adam, let's get to work. You're due on the stage in a few moments." She dried her eyes and got up. "All right, Brenda," she called, "I'll take over now. Thanks for helping who had faced things, chins up, shoulders back, those southern me out."

WOMEN IN TRAINING AS Bomber Pilots

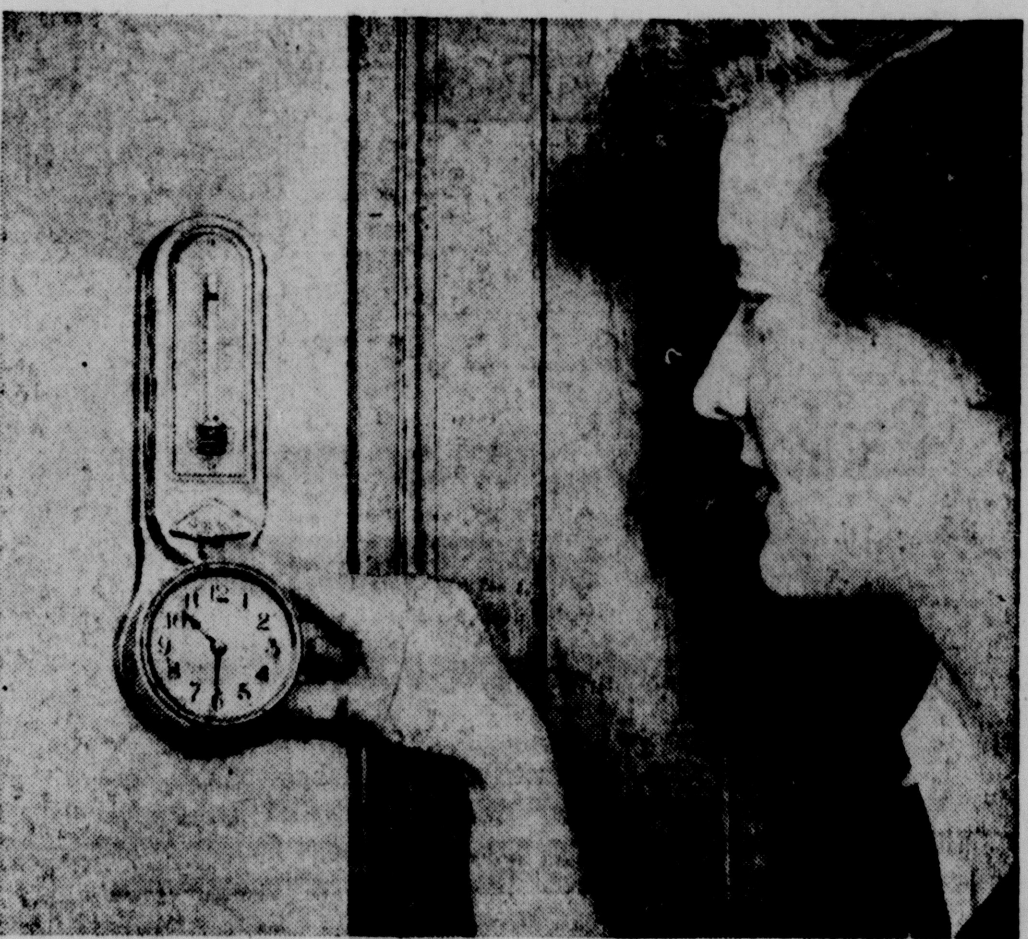

First Five at Lockbourne for Nine-week Course

COLUMBUS, Oct. 20.—(P)—Five members of the Women's Auxiliary Service Pilots (Wasps) arrived at Lockbourne Army Air Base today to begin a nine-week course with the first group of 17 women to be trained to pilot four-engine B-17 Flying Fortress bombers.

Col. John S. Gullet, Lockbourne commanding officer, announced the 17 women, all experienced pilots and graduates of the Sweetwater, Tex., flying school for women, would receive the same instruction as student officers at the base.
Colonel Gullet said the Wasps would be used, under present plans, only as co-pilots on the Fortresses, but would be trained to qualify as first pilots capable of handling the big planes alone if necessary.
The women, holding civilian status, will be under military discipline while at Lockbourne. They will live in the nurses' quarters at the Base hospital and will eat in the officers' mess.

Lions' Club Ladies' Night Dinner Held at Country Club

An evening of varied entertainment was enjoyed by the 75 men and women at the Lions Club ladies' night dinner held Tuesday night at the Country Club.

After the dinner, a bingo game with prizes of baskets of groceries was played. About 75 percent of the prizes went to the new members of the club, Paul Van Voorhis, secretary of the club said.

Two movies, "Tom Smith" issued by the National War Fund and another depicting the bombing of Pearl Harbor were shown by George Hall immediately after the dinner.

In keeping with the Halloween theme of the dinner meeting, the Lions wore overalls and other old clothes and their wives wore sweaters and skirts or housedresses.

Dinner partners were determined by matching Halloween cut-outs which were issued to the men and women before the dinner was served. The tables were decorated with orange and black candles and crepe paper streamers and pumpkins and corn stalks were placed about the room to give a Halloween atmosphere.

Lion president, Harold McCord, introduced the two newest Lions and their wives during the dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Suntheimer and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Baker. It was the first meeting for each of the men.

Group singing led by W. L. O'Brien was also a feature of the evening entertainment, pianist for the singing was Dana Kelly. Tail Twister Bob Terhune collected fines from all members who didn't sing.

On the covers of the programs used were an American flag and in the two lower corners, two stars for Lions now in service; Pharmacists Made Third Class Sam Parrett and Capt. Ray J. Nauss. John Sagar was program chairman.

Two simple steps to amazing New STRENGTH ...better LOOKS!

1—Promote the flow of vital digestive juices in the stomach
2—Energize your body with RICH, RED BLOOD!

These two important steps may help you to overcome the discomforts of embarrassment of sour stomach, jerky nerves, loss of appetite, indigestion, digestive complaints, weakness, poor complexion!

A person who is operating on only a 70 to 75% healthy blood volume or a stomach capacity of only 50 to 60% normal is severely handicapped. So with simple stomach digestive juices PLUS RICH, RED-BLOOD you should enjoy that sense of well being which denotes physical fitness... mental alertness!

If you are subject to poor digestion or suspect deficient red-blood as the cause of your trouble, yet have no organic complication or focal infection, SSS Tonic may be just what you need as it is especially designed to promote the flow of VITAL DIGESTIVE JUICES in the stomach and to build-up BLOOD STRENGTH when deficient.
